

Your website, in your own words.

We've rebuilt the structure of your homepage based on everything in your deck, your own landing page, and what you told us in the meeting. The design is ready. What we need now is you — the actual words, the real events, the real people who'll speak for you.

PREPARED FOR	COVERS	QUESTIONS	TIME NEEDED
Tiffany Webb	Homepage · 12 sections	54, most are yes / no / edit	About an hour

How this works — and why it's shaped this way.

You've already written most of this. It's spread across your deck, your landing page, your topic sheet and your presentations. Our job was to find the right order for it. Your job is to correct us and fill the gaps.

1. Most questions show you what we've already drafted. You'll see a box marked CURRENT DRAFT. If it's right, write "keep". If it's close, edit it. If it's wrong, tell us what's true. You almost never have to write from a blank page.
 2. You can type straight into this PDF. Every answer box is a live field — click it and type, then save and send it back. If that doesn't work on your device, or you'd simply rather not, open a blank Google Doc and answer by number instead: 3.2 — keep. 3.3 — change to... Either way is completely fine and nothing is lost. The tick boxes are there for printing — if you're typing, just write your choice in the field underneath.
 3. The screenshots show the site as it is today. Some of what you'll see is changing, and the caption tells you when. A few things on the current build were placeholders we made to test the design — those are marked in orange, and they're exactly the things we need real answers for.
 4. "I don't have that" is a complete answer. If you don't have event photos, or a video, or a testimonial yet, say so. We'll design around it honestly rather than fill it in for you.
 5. Part A is six approvals. Please do that part first, even if the rest waits — all six are holding up the build.

Six things only you can confirm.

These aren't design questions. Each one is a claim the website will make on your behalf, and none of them should be decided by us. All six are currently blocking the build.

Please read this one. A few sections of the current build contain example content we created to test the layout — three video clips, three conference names, and one quote. They look real. They are not, and they will be removed. Nothing invented will ever go live on your site. Where you see orange text in this document, that's what it means.

A.1 May we use "Break the Silence" as your personal headline?

Right now it's the largest text on your homepage. In your GambleFreeGear materials it's that brand's tagline, sitting under the GambleFreeGear logo. We need your written yes before it becomes your personal line too — or an alternative you prefer. This is only about the headline on your site; we've removed it as a talk title.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Yes — use it as my personal headline too

☐ No — keep it for GambleFreeGear only

☒ Use this instead ↓

A.2 May we name your employer and your affiliated organizations on the site?

This is the one we genuinely don't know the answer to, and it changes a whole section. Three separate permissions — please answer each, and tell us if you need to clear any of them internally first.

YOUR ANSWER

ORGANIZATION	NAME IT?	HOW YOU WANT IT WORDED
 employer
 Council on Problem Gambling
"Are You Really Winning?" campaign

Note: we'll describe the campaign as something you take part in, never something you run — unless you tell us otherwise.

A.3 Which of the photos on the current site are actually you?

Some images in the build may have been generated rather than photographed. Everything on a personal brand site has to be a real photograph of you. Please tell us which real photos you have, and we'll replace the rest.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ I have professional headshots

☐ I have photos from real events

☐ I need a photo shoot

A.4 "4,000+ hours of outreach" — over what period, and counted how?

It's a strong number and we want to keep it. But the first journalist or program chair who asks needs a one-line answer, and it should be yours, not ours.

YOUR ANSWER

A.5 When your bio says "lived experience", what does that cover?

We want to be careful here. Some of our draft copy could be read as saying you have personal experience of gambling harm. If that isn't what you mean, we'll rewrite it. Tell us in your own words what you're comfortable having said publicly, and what you'd rather we never say.

YOUR ANSWER

A.6 Keep your credentials displayed as "Tiffany Webb, BBA, MHP"?

That's how the hero shows it now. We won't spell out the credential anywhere on the site.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Keep as is

☐ Name only, no letters

☐ Different — write below

01 The hero

FIRST 5 SECONDS

What this section does: a conference organizer decides in about five seconds whether to keep scrolling. This section has to say who you are, what you do, and what they can book you for — before they read anything else.

Current build. Changing: the "Watch the reel" button comes out until a real video exists. The row of formats at the bottom stays — it's one of the strongest things on the page.

1.1 The small line above your name

CURRENT DRAFT

Community Impact Strategist · Public Health Educator & Speaker

This is the line that replaces a job title. It's how you'll be introduced from a stage. Keep, or rewrite in your words.

YOUR ANSWER

1.2

The one sentence under your name — the most important sentence on your website

CURRENT DRAFT

Fifteen years turning the hardest conversations about gambling harm into prevention communities can actually use.

Answer it like this: you're in an elevator with a conference organizer for twelve seconds. What do you say you do? Don't polish it — write it the way you'd say it out loud. We'll shape it. Roughly 15–25 words.

1.3

What should the main button say?

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Book Tiffany☐ Invite Tiffany to speak☐ Check availability☒ Start a conversation☐ Other ↓

1.4

Do you have any video of yourself speaking?

Even phone footage from the back of a room. Booking committees want to see you hold a room before anything else, and it's the single asset that would most improve this page. If you have anything at all, we'll work with it.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Yes — professional footage☒ Yes — phone / informal footage☐ A recorded webinar or panel☐ Nothing yet

1.5

The format strip along the bottom — are these the right five?

CURRENT DRAFT

Keynotes · Conference Sessions · Panels · Workshops · School Programs

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Keep all five☐ Remove one ↓☐ Add one ↓

1.6 Which photo should be here?

Ideally you speaking, mid-sentence, with a room in shot. A studio headshot works but does less. Send us the two or three you'd be happiest seeing full-screen.

YOUR ANSWER

02 Your numbers

PROOF, IN THREE FIGURES

What this section does: three numbers that establish you're experienced before anyone reads a paragraph. They have to be true and you have to be able to defend them.

Current build. Changing: the third number now reads 20 speaking topics — the screenshot still shows 21. A number about people or organizations would be stronger still — see 2.3.

2.1 Years of experience — what year did you start?

CURRENT DRAFT

15+ years

If you give us the start year we can write "since 2009" instead, which ages correctly on its own and reads as more precise.

YOUR ANSWER

2.2 The 4,000+ hours figure — keep it?

Same as A.7. If you'd rather not defend it, we can swap it for something easier to evidence.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Keep it

☐ Replace it ↓

2.3 Is there a stronger third number you can stand behind?

Even a rough, honest estimate. Any of these would outperform a topic count: people reached through your sessions · organizations you've worked with · events delivered · schools or campuses visited · counties or states covered · people screened · staff trained. Give us whatever you can, even approximate — we'll word it carefully.

YOUR ANSWER

Anything you've achieved that you'd want a stranger to know in one line?

An award, a first, a program you started, a resolution you got passed, a coalition you built. This often turns out to be the best thing on a page and it's almost never in anyone's deck.

YOUR ANSWER

What this section does: makes a stranger care. It's the only part of the page that isn't selling anything — and in our experience it's the part people actually finish reading.

Current build. This is the strongest writing on your site and we'd like to keep almost all of it. The full text is below — please read it properly and mark it up.

3.1 Is this true, and does it sound like you?

CURRENT DRAFT — READ CAREFULLY

Chicago-born and raised, with deep Louisiana family roots, Tiffany Webb has spent more than fifteen years doing prevention work where it actually happens — in school gyms, clinic waiting rooms, church basements, and community centers across Illinois.

She came to this work through behavioral health. She stayed because she kept meeting families who had never been given language for what was happening to them. A father who couldn't explain where the money went. A student who thought a betting app was just a game. A wife who assumed she was the only one.

Cross out anything that isn't accurate and write the correction beside it. Small factual details matter here — "church basements" should only stay if you've actually worked in one.

YOUR ANSWER

3.2 The three people in that second paragraph — are they real?

The father, the student, the wife. If they're drawn from people you've actually met, that's the most powerful writing on your site and we keep it. If we invented them, tell us and give us three real ones instead — no names, just situations.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Real — keep them

☐ Real, but change the details ↓

☐ Replace with these ↓

3.3 "I" or "she"?

Your deck is written as "I" — my roots, my mission, my journey. The website is currently written as "she". Our recommendation: your story pages speak as I, and the practical sections (formats, booking, logistics) speak as she. That way it's your voice where it counts and it reads professionally where it should. Tell us if you'd rather it were one or the other throughout.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Follow your recommendation

☐ "I" everywhere

☐ "She" everywhere

3.4 What's missing from your story that you'd want a stranger to know?

Three or four sentences, however they come out. Why this work and not something else. What you're actually trying to change. Don't write it as a bio — write it the way you'd tell someone at a dinner table.

YOUR ANSWER

3.5 Should GambleFreeGear be mentioned here, or only in the footer?

Our plan is a line in the footer and a short paragraph on your About page, both linking out to the store. It stays a separate brand — it just stops being invisible on your main site. Confirm the link address too.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Footer + About paragraph — agreed

☐ Footer link only

☐ Leave it off entirely

04 What you speak about

20 TOPICS, 4 TRACKS

What this section does: the homepage shows your four track cards. The full 20 topics live on their own page, where an organizer can filter by who their audience is. That page will be the main reason people find you in search.

Current build. Changing: the flagship keynote card has been removed and the count now reads twenty throughout. The four tracks and the detail panels stay as they are.

4.1 The line introducing your topics

CURRENT DRAFT

Twenty topics across four tracks — practical enough to use on Monday, human enough that the room stays with her.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Keep

☐ Edit ↓

4.2

The four track descriptions

One line each, shown on the homepage cards. Keep or edit.

CURRENT DRAFT

Prevention & Awareness — Community awareness, youth focus, and engaging elected officials, with culturally rooted prevention models.

Treatment, Recovery & Professional Training — For clinicians, providers and program leaders.

Family & Community Impact — The link between gambling, domestic violence and trauma, and supporting the families living with it.

Creative & Promotional Engagement — Art competitions, responsible gifting and ROSC council engagement, turning awareness into participation.

YOUR ANSWER

4.3

Which three topics are you asked for most often?

These get featured on the homepage. Just the numbers from the table on the next page.

YOUR ANSWER

4.4

Is anything missing from the list of 20?

Anything you've started delivering since that sheet was written.

YOUR ANSWER

4.5 — Your 20 topics, one row each

Deliver? — do you still give this talk. Length — typical running time. What they leave with — the single thing the room takes home. That last column is what turns a list of titles into a page an organizer books from.

What this section does: organizers shop by format first and subject second. They know they need a 45-minute breakout before they know what it should be about. Your own materials list fourteen services — we'll show six as cards and the rest as a line underneath, so nothing gets lost.

Current build. Changing: the Keynote card currently has a dollar-sign icon — that's being replaced. The cards will also be evened out; the uneven heights are a bug.

From your own landing page — the fourteen services. Eight of these are missing from our build. Question 5.2 brings them back.

5.1 Confirm the six main formats

CURRENT DRAFT

Keynote · Conference Session · Panel · Workshop · School & University Program · Training

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Keep all six

☐ Swap one ↓

5.2 Which of these do you also do?

Tick everything that applies. These become a single line under the six cards. Podcasts and webinars in particular are how speakers get found nationally without traveling.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Podcast guest

☐ Media interviews

☐ Webinars

☐ Staff development

☐ Professional training

☐ Strategic planning

☐ Coalition building

☐ Community consultation

☐ Community presentations

☐ Youth programs

☐ Breakout sessions

☐ Panel moderation

☐ Program design

☐ Curriculum development

What this section does: lets a visitor find themselves on the page. Your deck lists this three separate times under three different headings — we've merged them into one.

Current build. Changing: growing from eight to eleven — faith communities and conference organizers are on your own list and missing here.

6.1 The paragraph on the left

CURRENT DRAFT

The communities most affected by gambling harm are often the ones prevention reaches last. Tiffany's work is built to close that gap — with cultural fluency, frontline experience, and evidence behind every session.

We think this is the sharpest sentence on your whole site and we want to make it bigger. Is it true, and is it how you'd put it?

YOUR ANSWER

6.2 Confirm the eleven

YOUR ANSWER — CROSS OUT ANY THAT DON'T APPLY

☐ Conferences	☐ Schools	☐ Colleges & universities	☐ Healthcare systems	☐ Hospitals
☐ Government & public health	☐ Community organizations	☐ Nonprofits
☐ Behavioral health providers	☐ Recovery networks	☐ Faith communities	☐ Conference organizers
☐ Community coalitions

6.3 Is there anyone you would not work with?

An important question in your field, and one most speaker sites avoid. Casinos, gaming operators, sportsbooks, lottery bodies — some prevention speakers work with them on responsible-gambling programs and some won't on principle. Both positions are defensible. We just need to know yours before someone asks.

YOUR ANSWER

6.4 Which three should appear first?

The ones you most want more of, not the ones you do most.

YOUR ANSWER

What this section does: this is the section that says you're more than a speaker. It's your own framework — SPEAK, PARTNER, STRATEGIZE, STRENGTHEN — and it's currently on your landing page but completely missing from ours. We're bringing it back, and pairing it with the organizations you've actually worked with, so the framework has evidence behind it.

7.1 Are the four pillars still right, and are the items under each still accurate?

CURRENT, FROM YOUR DECK

SPEAK — keynotes, workshops, panels, moderation, webinars

PARTNER — resource tables, conferences, health fairs, community events, coalition meetings, networking with stakeholders

STRATEGIZE — strategic planning, prevention planning, community engagement strategy, partnership development, coalition support, program design

STRENGTHEN — staff training, technical assistance, capacity building, program evaluation, community outreach planning, sustainability planning

7.2 A line to introduce this section

CURRENTLY ON YOUR PAGE

More Than a Speaker — A Collaborative Partner. / Together, We Create Lasting Impact.

Keep one, keep both, or write something you'd rather say.

YOUR ANSWER

7.3 Which organizations may we name?

Yash asked us to ask you directly for this — names of partners and collaborators you've already worked with, and any you're working with soon. Please add a row per organization. If you need permission from any of them first, mark it and we'll wait.

ORGANIZATION	RELATIONSHIP	PAST OR UPCOMING	OK TO NAME PUBLICLY?

Relationship examples: host organization · coalition member · campaign participant · training client · conference host · community partner.

Do you have permission to use their logos?

Names alone work fine. Logos work better, but only with written permission — most organizations have a brand team who handles it.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Yes, for some ↓

☐ Names only, no logos

☐ Need to ask them

What this section does: handles the objection before it's raised. But a list of adjectives about yourself is only self-assessment — it becomes evidence the moment someone else says it. That's why this section pairs your qualities with real testimonials, and why it won't go live until we have at least two.

From your own landing page — eleven qualities. We'll show six.

8.1 Pick the six that matter most

YOUR ANSWER — TICK SIX

☐ Professional	☐ Engaging	☐ Evidence-based	☐ Interactive	☐ Collaborative
☐ Mission-focused	☐ Practical	☐ Community-centered	☐ Strategic thinker
☐ Relationship builder	☐ Trusted public health professional

8.2 Testimonials — this is the biggest single gap on your site

Right now there isn't one real quote anywhere. Nothing else on this list would improve your booking rate as much. Two options, and you can do both: paste anything you already have below, and give us three people we could approach. A short email from us — or from you, your call — is usually enough.

QUOTES YOU ALREADY HAVE

PEOPLE WE COULD ASK

NAME	ROLE & ORGANIZATION	EMAIL	SHOULD WE ASK, OR WILL YOU?

8.3 Any press, awards, features or recognition?

A local news segment, a podcast you appeared on, a certificate, a proclamation, a mention in a report. Small things count more than people expect.

YOUR ANSWER

What this section does: answers the only question a booking committee really has — has this worked before, for people like us? A preview sits on the homepage; the full version becomes its own page with your events, your outcomes and your partners, exactly as you asked in the meeting.

Important — the three events shown here are not real. We built them to test the card design. The National Conference on Problem Gambling, the Illinois Public Health Summit and the University Wellness Symposium entries are all being deleted. This page is what we need to replace them with.

9.1 Upcoming engagements — anything confirmed?

Only ones that are actually booked. If there are none right now, say so — we'll use an honest "next dates announced soon" rather than invent anything.

EVENT	HOST ORGANIZATION	DATE	CITY	FORMAT	PUBLIC OR PRIVATE

9.2 Past engagements — as many as you can remember

Approximate dates are fine. This is the single most valuable thing you can send us, and it doesn't need to be complete to start. Add more rows on a separate sheet if you have them.

EVENT	HOST ORGANIZATION	YEAR	CITY	ROUGHLY HOW MANY PEOPLE

9.3 Outcomes — pick three events and tell us what changed afterwards

You mentioned outcomes in the meeting and you were right to. Attendance numbers say a room was full; outcomes say something happened in it. Screenings booked · a resolution passed · staff trained · referrals made · a coalition formed · a program adopted · students reached · a policy changed. Even one sentence each.

EVENT ONE

EVENT TWO

EVENT THREE

9.4 What does working with you actually look like, around the date?

You mentioned the client journey. There are two versions and we'd like to build the one you meant. Tick one — or describe your own.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ The booking journey — inquiry → call → proposal → agreement → prep → delivery → follow-up

☐ The engagement journey — what you do around the event: understanding their audience first → the session → materials they keep → an outcome summary afterwards

9.5 Do you have anything visual from past events?

Tick everything you have somewhere, even if it's messy or on your phone. Yash asked us to ask about all of these.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Photos of you speaking

☐ Event posters or flyers

☐ Conference program pages

☐ Slide decks you've presented

☐ Handouts or worksheets

☐ Video clips

☐ Social posts about your sessions

☐ Certificates or proclamations

☐ Templates you've made

What this section does: a thin band on the homepage leading to a media page. The point is that a conference marketing assistant working at 11pm can get your headshot and bio without emailing you. Your current materials say "available upon request" — in practice that reads as unavailable.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Professional headshots	☐ Short bio	☐ Long bio	☐ Introduction script
☐ Session descriptions	☐ Your own logo	☐ Event photos	☐ Social graphics
☐ Speaker one-sheet	☐ Brand colors / fonts

What this section does: turns interest into an inquiry. We're replacing the current button with the form itself, using the fields from your own landing page — because those same fields also feed your inquiry tracking later on.

Current build. Changing: the form moves onto the page rather than behind a button. One less click at the moment someone has decided to contact you.

11.1 What email address do you want?

This will be at tiffanywebbimpact.com — your own domain, never your work address. That's a rule we're keeping throughout. Pick one, or write your own. Our recommendation is booking@ because it tells the visitor exactly what it's for.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ booking@
 ☐ hello@
 ☐ info@
 ☐ speaking@
 ☐ connect@
 ☐ Other ↓

The domain is being registered as tiffanywebbimpact.com for two years.

11.2 Do you want a phone number on the site?

YOUR ANSWER

What this section does: more people read a footer than anyone expects. Yours carries your values, your quote, your links, and the one line about GambleFreeGear.

Current build. Changing: adding your location, a newsletter signup, and the GambleFreeGear link. The social links only stay if the accounts exist – see 12.3.

YOUR ANSWER

12.5 Newsletter — do you want one?

Your own page had a signup and we think it's worth keeping. It's the only audience you own outright — no algorithm between you and them. Even four emails a year is enough to be worth building.

YOUR ANSWER

☐ Yes — set it up

☐ Yes, but later

☐ No

If yes: what would you send, and how often?

What to send us alongside this.

Don't wait until you've answered everything. Anything on this list you can send now speeds the whole build up — and several of these unlock sections we can't finish without them.

Images

- ☐ Professional headshots — highest resolution you have, and please say who took them and whether you have the right to use them online.
- ☐ Photos of you actually speaking — a stage, a mic, a room. These are worth more than studio portraits and we currently have none.
- ☐ Photos from community work — resource tables, health fairs, school visits, coalition meetings.
- ☐ Your logo, if you have one, and the GambleFreeGear logo files.

Video

- ☐ Anything at all of you speaking. Phone footage is genuinely fine — we'd rather have ninety honest seconds than a polished reel that doesn't exist. This is the highest-impact thing on the entire list.
- ☐ Recorded webinars, panels or podcast appearances, even if you only have the link.

Documents

- ☐ Event posters, flyers, conference program pages you appear in.
- ☐ Slide decks from talks you've given — we'll pull session descriptions from them, not reuse the design.
- ☐ Handouts, worksheets, or any templates you've built for sessions.
- ☐ Certificates, proclamations, resolutions, or recognitions.
- ☐ Any existing bio you're already happy with.

People

- ☐ Three names for testimonials — question 8.2.
- ☐ Your partner and collaborator list — question 7.3.

How to send it. One folder, any service — Google Drive, Dropbox, WeTransfer. Don't sort or rename anything; we'd rather have it messy than wait for it to be tidy.

Once this comes back, the writing starts.

Your answers become the actual words on the site — every headline, every paragraph, every button, every line of the booking form. Nothing gets written until you've told us what's true.

In order:

- 01 Part A comes back first — all six are holding up the build today.
 - 02 We delete everything from the site that isn't yours or isn't true.
 - 03 Your answers become the full written copy, section by section, for your approval.
 - 04 The homepage is rebuilt in the new order with your real words in it.
 - 05 Your events, outcomes and partners build out the impact page.
 - 06 Nothing goes live until you've read every word of it.

Two things worth saying plainly.

Nothing invented will appear on your website. Where we've used example content to test a design, it's marked in this document and it's being removed.

Your work email address will never appear in any of your brand materials. Not on the site, not in the media kit, not in the deck.
